They will be made "by specified processors" for the department of agriculture The meat will be or rescind such licenses only after turned over to the federal emergency relief administration for distribution. Wallace estimated the cost of the program at up to $55 000,000 to be met by a processing tax on hogs which will go into effect after Sept 30. The tax rate and effective date will be fixed later, he said, estimating that the levy, paid by those who turn the swins into market-able pork, will be "considerably less than a cent a pound." Origin Explained

Wallace said the plan originated with hog farmers and their representatives to meet the emergency facing producers as a result of this year's short feed crop, adding: There are some things about it that we do not like, but we are putting it into effect because we have not been able to think of anything as good." He estimated that the purchases will reduce the total tonnage of swine marketed for the 1933-34 marketing season starting Oct. 1 by up to 1,800,000,000 pounds, or about 16 per cent of the hog tonnage annually marketed.

"If past experience is any guide, a reduction of 15 to 16 per cent in market supplies should increase hog prices for the season by anywhere from 25 to 30 per cent," Wallace said. "Prices paid for these pigs and sows will, I believe, be sufficient to warrant the cooperation of hog producers."

The federal emergency relief administration. Wallace continued, has indicated its desire to dispose of all the meat to needy persons. It will be purchased by the relief group at a price sufficient to defray the costs of processing, storage and

The new gas and oil well on the O. J. Weiker farm, east of here, was shot Thursday moon with 80 quarts of nitro-giveerin used in making the shot. It is believed that the well will produce approximately 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas daily. A showing of oil was in evidence before the well was shot nad it is thought the well will also be a good oil producer. The well was drilled by Temple of copper wire, which so far as the house itself is concerned begin and end in a fuse box near the meter. Every lighting and convenience outlet in the house is on one of these circuits and each circuit is protected by a fuse.

To find out which circuit each light and convenience outlet is on, remove one fuse and find out in which room or rooms the lights are affected. Then check the convenience outlets carefully to see which ones are dead. To do this, plug into each convenience outlet, in turn, a light on an extension cord or any small piece of electrical about easily. All outlets in a room are not necessarily on the same circuit. Make a careful record of the outlets on each circuit and permanently attach this record to the door of your fuse box or mount it on a card and fasten securely near the board on which the fuses are mounted. This will be very useful for reference, and will save time and patience in replacing fuses. (Answer by home management specialist, Ohio Agricultural Exten-sion Service).

The existing situation in the islands is a positive | ference besides hot air, guarantee of trouble. No longer can there be any United States is making a surry meas of trying to independence. The Democratic party has been committed to independence since 1920. Whether the leaders of the independence movement try to get a more satisfactory plan or whether they finally compromise on the plan offered them, they are assured of support from the Roosevelt administration.

From the Philippine standpoint, future action has less to do with principles than with strategy, Thus, it is argued by some independence enthusiasts that, regardless of the demonstrable silliness and injustice of the so-called Hare-Hawes-Cutting act, their best move is to accept it in good faith and improve it afterward. One great difficulty lies in their way; their own inability to make the people believe that good strategy is more important than good principle, Significantly, there are no real defenders of the act, either in the United States or in the Philippines. The best that can be said for it is that it represents an expedient compromise—the most satisfactory legislation obtainable under the circumstances. In congress, its sponsors sought to please everyone, and the act reveals the consequences all too plainly. It has added unrest to a situation already chaotic Eventually, the United States will have to pay a price for its failure to acquit itself creditably of its ternational justice in such situations which cannot be escaped. the processes of law a danger of sentimentality. It is not uncommon for the perpetrator of a hejnous crime to have his defenders among the people when he stands before justice. Lacking the power to resson, they give themselves up too freely to the promptlngs of indiscriminating sympathy.

It is evident that such reservations as this fear of sentimentality have been satisfied in the case of Paul Maxim, who received a full pardon this week from Covernor White. His case needed no roseate glow of sympathy to establish it as worthy of justice's careful consideration. It appealed directly to that reasoning power of the people which determines the lines of justice.

Maxim was convicted on a charge of robbery in his youth. Possibly, a more lenient judge and a more discerning one might have salvaged him from a life of crime then, without further difficulty. As it happened, he was sent to the Mansfield reformatory, from which he escaped at the age of 19 years. There followed a storybook episode of attainment, ending abruptly a few weeks ago when he was arrested in the office he occupied as advertising manager.

As far as is known, Maxim's life, aside from one slip made in his youth, has been exemplary from the standpoint of honesty. By his own efforts, he an obligation, furthermore, to demand unceasingly had passed through that hard process which is the that nothing be allowed to sidetrack the bank reideal objective of criminal law-reclamation of the individual. Not always has the law been brought into harmony with reason in such cases. Or Else.

Great Britain realistically gives point to the cogtations of delegates in the world disarmament conference by announcing what it is prepared to do if the conference fails. In what probably is an inspired statement, a British newspaper says that 100 fighting airplanes and a new force of seaplanes would be built.

This significant reply to international refusal to do anything about disarming would be couched in the most efficient units of aerial warfare yet devised by men. At least, that seems a safe assumption on the grounds of Great Britain's remarkable success with aircraft engines. Alone of all the nations, it was able to construct an engine that would defy competition in the Schneider cup races.

Great possibilities of satisfactory armament at a fraction of the cost of ships are opened up by constant development of the airplane. One hundred airplanes, manned by 200 men, could destroy many battleships carrying thousands of men. The 100 airplanes could be built and replaced for the cost of a single battleship, furthermore. Great Britain's threat is made in language that can be understood. Unfortunately, it can be construed too easily as a challenge to participate in a race which almost any government can afford to enter,

Progress Toward Reform.

A treasury department report showing 13,951 licensed banks operating without restrictions and 2,870 banks closed or operating on a restricted basis is a valuable reminder of a catastrophe that could have been prevented. There is no cause to be glad that so much has been done to rescue depositors; they never should have been imperited.

The Gases is estain of a tie for the Indus loop diadem, regardless that Industry is a supposite to a supposite that Industry is a supposite to the supposite that Industry is a supposite that of how today's centest comes out. It needs a victory, however, to gain undisputed possession of the crown 3-Way Tie Possible

The possibility exists that the race will end in a three-way deadlock between the Gasco, Erie and the Serv-U-Wei Grocers Should the Erie win today, the Gasco and Serv-U-Wel will be deadlocked for the top. The Eine has a protested game with the Steam Shovel to play off and win before it can claim a share in the title The Etie-Shovel game is not a full length contest and is the result of a ruling made by the city commission some time ago on a game protested by the Shovel.

The Erie was trailing the Shovel 2-1 in the seventh with no one out homer in whith the seventh with no one out homer in whith the seventh violation of a rule was made by the Erie The Tikins to five hilly for 4-2 victor, the seventh with no one out homer in whith the seventh like the seventh like the seventh like the seventh like the seventh with no one out homer in whith park the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with park the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with park the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with park the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with no one out homer in which the seventh with the seventh w game continued and eventually game continued and eventually ended in a tle score. The commission ordered the game played over from the point of violation and ruled one man out.

Consequently, the play will start in the seventh with one man out and no one on and the Shovel leading 2-1. If the Eric can agueeze out a victory in the abbreviated contest, there will be a three-way tle for the top but of the Shovel is able to hold the slender lead, the Gasco and Serv-U-Wel will fight it out alone for the crown, Should the Gasco win today the Shovel-Eric game will not be played.
